“Life is a dream for the wise, a game for the fool, a comedy for the rich, a tragedy for the poor.”
(Sholom Aleichem). As he also expressed life as a game.

The poet says that real story slips out back door as all eyes focused on the front. He argues, is concerned less with his language than with his art. The poet out look towards life has undergone after our affair she discovered life is a tale of prose. I felt love as short as haiku.

a time to part. let us kiss and depart.

(‘The End of an Affair’, Page 63)

In any area of imagination, an undeclared directive to ‘make it new’ consists with an equally strong imperative to hold qualities of the old.

with oily fins,
shiny scales,
through the glass
of your eves,
swims. you

in the desert of waters and bubbles

The day the world ends, no one will be there, just as no one was there when it began. This is a scandal. Such a scandal for the human race that it is indeed capable collectively, out of spite, of hastening the end of the world by all means just so it can enjoy the show. “Jean Baudrillard” The poet has experience that man does not seek to build others survive joy full life. Therefore he cannot himself live blissfully. Like saint Kabir, the poet gives us the teaching of love and compassion for everyone.

The octopus
of desire
stirs
arteries and veins
tears flesh apart
feeding upon fire
swallowing air
